

The Campus Computing Project (US)

“Begun in 1990, The Campus Computing Project™ is the largest continuing study of the role of information technology in American higher education. The project's national studies draw on qualitative and quantitative data to help inform faculty, campus administrators, and others interested in the use of information technology in American colleges and universities. The US Campus Computing Project also provides the foundation for affiliated research projects in other nations, including Brazil Canada, China, and Hong Kong.

From www.campuscomputing.net/, 19 July 2008