

Education Schools Project, The (US)

“The Education Schools Project provides a critical assessment of the ways in which the nation's 1,200 schools of education prepare—and should prepare—teachers, school administrators, and education researchers.

“The Project aims to find a reasonable middle ground in a public policy debate that has become increasingly polarized over the last twenty years. educators. “

“[I]t offers constructive criticism, grounded in an ambitious four-year research study of the nation's schools and departments of education.”
