

Change.org empowers you to create real change in your community, city, or country

Every day, across the world, people like you start campaigns on Change.org to fight for issues they care about — and the Change.org team works to mobilize people to help them win.

We believe that building momentum for social change globally means empowering citizen activists locally. That's why anyone, anywhere — from Chicago to Cape Town — can start their own grassroots campaign for change using our organizing platform.

Your campaign can be about anything. From supporting curbside recycling programs to fighting wrongful deportation to protecting against anti-gay bullying, Change.org members start campaigns around thousands of different issues. To start your own campaign, just click here.

Our mission is to build an international network of people empowered to fight for what's right locally, nationally, and globally. We hope you'll join us.

As part of our work to build social movements, we also help nonprofits grow their membership by connecting them to people passionate about their cause. For more information, click here [<http://www.change.org/partners>].

Our Members' Impact

Ultimately, the measure of our community's success is our collective impact — our ability to identify problems, mobilize people, and create real change.

From the first day we launched, Change.org members have won hundreds of campaigns in their neighborhoods, towns, and cities. Each victory doesn't just overcome an isolated case of inequality or injustice — it allows people to view important issues through a tangible, often personal lens, inspiring them to take further action and helping to build the deep commitment, connections, and momentum necessary to make ever-larger change possible.

- Bank of America Cancels Plans for $5 Debit Card Fee
- Verizon Drops Online Payment Fee Within 24 Hours After Immediate Online Backlash
- Dallas VA Medical Center Removes Homophobic Nurse for Harassing Lesbian Marine Veteran
- Universal Pictures Lets the Lorax Speak for the Trees!
- Ecuador Ministry of Health Investigates and Closes Ex- Gay Torture Clinics

More victories achieved by members of the Change.org community »
[\[http://www.change.org/victories\]](http://www.change.org/victories)

How we help you succeed

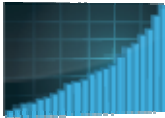

Tools

We provide the best advocacy tools in the world to you — for free. This starts with our email petition tool, and will soon expand to a full suite of tools for online and offline campaigning.

Support

We have a team of the world's best organizers who provide free training, advice, and strategic support to people who start campaigns.

Scale

We can help your campaign by promoting it to interested Change.org members, connecting you to potential partners, and assisting you with media outreach and target negotiation strategy.

If you're a member of the media with a question about Change.org or one of the campaigns on our site, please email press@change.org