

“The fundamental mission of Nagoya University is to cultivate highly talented people and to become the base of knowledge creation. ... to foster the harmonious development of human nature and science, producing world class research outputs, and cultivating courageous intellectuals gifted with rational thought and creativity for contributing to society through research and education. ... Nagoya University endeavors to carry out its responsibilities as a pivotal university contributing to society through among others the development of learning in the 21st century, technological innovation, cultivation of outstanding human resources, and provision of advanced medical treatment.”