Subject: Re: Copyright on SCT Press Releases

Hi Jim,

I can either give you permission, or send you a number of releases printed on SCT paper, or both.

Thank you for noting the copyright. I'll look into adjusting it to better fit press release use (especially printing, sending, etc. . .)

You may be unaware SCT Press Releases are labelled as copyright on the Web page (since it appears part of a footer). This precludes printing, downloading, transmission by facsimile, or other reproduction, and only limited quotatations may be used.

We would like to have a release that would permit im+m to reproduce selected press releases for the JA-SIG development community. These would include the SCT logo, the text of the press release as it appears on $\operatorname{SCT.com},$ and a reference to the Webpage from which it was copied.

Thanks for assistance with this administrative detail.

Hello Jim-

You do have authorization to reproduce & distribute SCT press releases as long as they are copied in their entirety.

Since the SCT Website continues to carry the SCT copyright "Copyright (c)

2003 SCT Corp." on the press releases posted on the Website, could you grant permission to im+m and the JA-SIG Collaborative to reproduce and distribute your press releases provided they are copied in their entirety?

As an example, our colleagues at Oxford University and the University of

Hull would like to share the December 17th University of Nottingham press $\,$ release with their peers.

Thanks.
