

“The University of Teesside is committed to maintain and develop the academic character which it established as a Polytechnic.

“The University will increase access for all who are able to participate in a broad range of high quality educational and vocational programmes, which develop potential and equip the participants for stimulating careers, rewarding to themselves and society.

“In addition to its role as an important centre for teaching, learning and research, the University will provide a particular focus for the development of the educational, cultural, social and economic life of the community.”

From www.tees.ac.uk/sections/about/mission.cfm, 21 August 2004