Subject: UC Berkeley Launches 2.4.x and retires Blackboard
To: announcements@collab.sakaiproject.org

Dear Colleagues --

UC Berkeley officially launched its new release of bSpace for the Fall 2007. Moving from 2.1.2 to 2.4.x will be a huge improvement for users, and we have many of you to thank for this. After this point we intend to be as aligned with the .x branch as possible. In addition to the features included in the 2.4.x branch we are including Indiana University's Forum tool, Boston University's Mailtool, and the University of Capetown's poll tool. We also now have a fresh face, with a vastly improved skin which not only looks good, but greatly assists users navigating Sakai.

As of July 31, we no longer host or support courses in either Blackboard or WebCT, making Sakai the sole enterprise LMS on the Berkeley campus. To prove it, just go ahead and visit blackboard.berkeley.edu and see what you get!

Again -- thanks to all of you for your outstanding dedication and work on Sakai. I can say with absolute confidence that the power of community source has been realized.

Cheers!

Mara
